Just before Dorit Lemel's grandmother passed away, the gentle 87-year-old promised to bring the New Yorker her beshert, or soul mate, and then, Paul Kemsley turned up in Dorit's life.

Originally from London, Paul lived in Los Angeles, but traveled to New York on business where the two met through friends. When Paul invited her on their first official date, Dorit declined. She was headed to Hong Kong for work.

“He asked me to postpone my flight,” says Dorit, who would not think of it. But then, a feeling that her grandmother was telling her something convinced her to change her mind. “We went out and have been inseparable from that first night,” says Dorit. Six months later, Paul moved to New
